This is the age for specialization in medicine, and one when all persons of the medical profession are endeavoring to perfect themselves in some special branch of medicine upon which they have decided as their chosen life work. Any military service is a special field of medical and sanitary practice, the conditions existing therein determining the essential differences between it and civil practice. It must be remembered, therefore, that the medical officer of the Navy is a specialist; that Navy medical work is a special branch of medical and sanitary practice and must be viewed as one among the many other special fields of medicine, as eye, ear, neurology, hygiene, etc.; and that the practitioner who takes up this line of work must likewise be specially trained as is the Specialist in another branch. It, however, differs so essentially from civil practice that this training must be of a character peculiar to the problems of the naval service. The applicant must approach his decision to undertake this special work as he would the question of entering any other specialty. In conjunction with his duties the medical officer may also perfect himself in some branch of medicine for which he has a particular bent or liking. He may specialize as a hygienist, a specialist in tropical medicine, eye, ear, etc. Let us now look upon what constitutes this field of medicine. The Navy consists of its...
